

THE AWAKENING

After fifty years of sound napping, depending on the white southerner and his "cotton crop," the members of the Race are migrating into northland, where every kind of labor is being thrown open to them, where decent houses are obtainable for him to house his family and better schools to educate his children.