WILLIAMSBURG, Saturday, April 29, 1775.

LATE last night an express arrived from Philadelphia, with the following melancholy advices from the province of Connecticut, forwarded to the committee of correspondence in this city.

The blow (so much dreaded by our noble friend LORD CHATHAM) is now struck, a great deal of blood spills, and much more, it is likely, than the present advices communicate. That great man, in his speech upon the necessity of withdrawing the troops from Boston (delivered in the House of Lords the 20th of January last) says: "Perhaps, even whilst I am now speaking, the decisive blow is struck, which may involve millions in the consequences; and, believe me, the very first drop of blood that is spilled will not be a wounded skin over; it will be irremovable, a wound of that dangerous and festering kind, that, in all probability, will mortify the whole body."

PHILADELPHIA, April 24, 1775.

An express arrived at five o'clock this evening, by which we have the following advices, viz.

WATERFORD, Wednesday morning, near 10 o'clock.

To all FRIENDS OF AMERICAN LIBERTY.

BE it known, that this morning, before break of day, a brigade, consisting of about 1000 or 1200 men, landed at Phipps farm, at Cambridge, and marched to Lexington, where they found a company of our colony militia in arms, upon whom they fired, without any provocation, and killed six men, and wounded four others. By an express from Boston, we find another brigade is now on its march from Boston, supposed to consist of 1000 men. The bearer, THOMAS BRIDLE, is charged to alarm the country, quite to Connecticut; and all persons are desired to furnish him with fresh horses, as they may be needed. I have spoken with several, who have seen the dead and wounded. Pray let the Delegates from this colony to Connecticut see this; they know Col. F. P. Fox, one of the Delegates.

Attested and forwarded by the committees of Brookline, Norwich, New London, Lyman, Saybrook, Killingworth, E. Guilford, Guilford, Branford, Newhaven.

FAIRFIELD, Saturday, April 22, 8 o'clock.

Since the above written, we have received the following, by a second express.

THURSDAY, 3 o'clock after noon.

I AM this moment informed, by an express from Woodstock, taken from the mouth of the express at two of the clock after noon, that the contest between the first brigade that marched to Concord was still continuing this morning at the town of Lexington, to which said brigade had retreated; that another brigade, said to be the second mentioned in the letter of this morning, had landed with a quantity of artillery at the place where the first did. The provincials were determined to prevent the two brigades from joining their strength, if possible, and remain in great need of succour.
N. B. The Regulars, when in Concord, burnt the courthouse, took two pieces of cannon, which they rendered useless, and began to take up Concord bridge; on which Capt. ------ (who, with many on both sides, were soon killed) made an attack upon the King's troops, on which they retreated to Lexington.

I am, &c.

To Col. O. B. JOHNSON, CANTERBURY.

P. S. Mr. McFarlane of Plainsfield, merchant, has just returned from Boston, by way of Providence, who conveyed with an express from Lexington, who farther informs, that 4000 of our troops had surrounded the first brigade above mentioned, who were on a hill in Lexington; that the action continued, and there were about 50 of our men killed, and 150 of the Regulars, as near as they could determine, when the express came away. It will be expedient for every man to go, who is fit and willing.

The above is a true copy, as received by express from Newhaven, and attested by the committee of correspondence from town to town.

THIS morning the committee of correspondence met, and have determined to send express to the southward.-----It is now full time for us all to be on our guard, and to prepare ourselves against every contingency. The sword is now drawn, and God knows when it will be sheathed.

PRINTED BY ALEXANDER PURDIE.
The actual commencement of hostilities against the Continent by the British Troops, in the bloody scene on the nineteenth of April last, near Boston; the increase of arbitrary impositions, from a wicked and despotick Ministry; and the dread of instigated insurrections in the Colonies, are causes sufficient to drive an oppressed People to the use of arms: We, therefore, the subscribers of Cumberland County, holding ourselves bound by that most sacred of all obligations, the duty of good citizens towards an injured Country, and thoroughly convinced that under our distressed circumstances we shall be justified before you in resisting force by force; do unite ourselves under every tie of religion and honour, and associate as a band in her defence against every foe; hereby solemnly engaging, that whenever our Continental or Provincial Councils shall decree it necessary, we will go forth and be ready to sacrifice our lives and fortunes to secure her freedom and safety. This obligation to continue in full force until, a reconciliation shall take place between Great Britain and America, upon constitutional principles, an event we most ardently desire. And we will hold all those persons inimical to the liberty of the Colonies who shall refuse to subscribe to this Association; and we will in all things follow the advice of our General Committee, respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individual and private property.

REV. JONAS CLARK
Pastor, Church of Christ, Lexington, Massachusetts

The Fate of Blood-Thirsty Oppressors and God’s Tender Care of His Distressed People

A SERMON PREACHED AT LEXINGTON, APRIL 19, 1776. To commemorate the MURDER, BLOODSHED, and Commencement of Hostilities, between Great-Britain and America, in that Town, by a Brigade of Troops of GEORGE III, under Command of Lieutenant-Colonel SMITH, on the Nineteenth of April, 1775.

... [One great purpose of this sermon] is to rouse and excite us to a religious acknowledgment of the hand of God, in those distressing scenes of MURDER, BLOODSHED and WAR, we are met to commemorate, upon this solemn occasion....

At length, on the night of the eighteenth of April, 1775, the alarm is given of the hostile designs of the [British] troops. The militia of this town are called together, to consult and prepare for whatever might be necessary, or in their power, for their own, and the common safety; though without the least design [purpose] of commencing hostilities, upon these avowed enemies and oppressors of their country. In the mean time, under cover of the darkness, a brigade of these instruments of violence and tyranny, make their approach, and with a quick and silent march, on the morning of the nineteenth, they enter this town. And this is the place where the fatal scene begins! — They approach with the morning’s light; and more like murderers and cut-throats, than the troops of a christian king, without provocation, without warning, when no war was proclaimed, they draw the sword of violence, upon the inhabitants of this town, and with a cruelty and barbarity, which would have made the most hardened savage blush, they shed INNOCENT BLOOD! — But, O my GOD! How shall I speak! — or how describe the distress, the horror of that awful morn, that gloomy day! — Yonder field can witness the innocent blood of our brethren slain! — And from thence does their blood cry unto God for vengeance from the ground! — There the tender father bled, and there the beloved son! — There the hoary head, and there the blooming youth! And there the man in his full strength, with the man of years! They bleed — they die, not by the sword of an open enemy (with whom war is proclaimed) in the field of battle; but by the hand of those that delight in spoil, and lurk privily that they may shed innocent blood! — But they bleed, they die, not in their own cause only; but in the cause of this whole people — in the cause of God, their country and posterity. — And they have not bled, they shall not bleed in vain. — Surely there is one that avengeth, and that will plead the cause of the injured and oppressed; and in his own way and time, will both cleanse and avenge their innocent blood. — And the names of Munroe, Parker, and others, that fell victims to the rage of blood-thirsty oppressors, on that gloomy morning, shall be had in grateful remembrance, by the people of this land, and transmitted to posterity, with honour and respect, throughout all generations.

* The field (not of battle) but of murder and bloodshed where our men were fired upon by the troops. [Footnote in original sermon, as published].

But it is not by us alone, that this day is to be noticed. — This ever memorable day is full of importance to all around — to this whole land and nation; and big with the fate of Great-Britain and America. — From this remarkable day will an important era begin for both America and Britain. And from the nineteenth of April, 1775, we may venture to predict, will be dated, in future history, THE LIBERTY or SLAVERY of the AMERICAN WORLD, according as a sovereign God shall see fit to smile, or frown upon the interesting cause, in which we are engaged.

How far the prophecy before us, may be applicable, upon this solemn occasion, and with what degree of truth, or probability, it may be predicted, in consequence of the present unjust and unnatural war, “that Great-Britain shall be a desolation, and England be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of America, because they have shed INNOCENT BLOOD in their land: But America shall dwell forever, and this people from generation to generation. And the LORD himself will cleanse their blood, that he hath not already cleansed.” — How far (I say) this prophecy may be applicable, in the present interesting contest, and how far it may be accomplished in the issue [result/consequences] thereof, God only knows, and time only can discover. — But of this we are certain, if we “humble ourselves under the mighty hand of God upon us, we shall be exalted, in His due time;”3 and if we rightly improve his dealings, “accept the punishment of our sins” and righteously trust in his name, we shall see his salvation.

3 1 Peter 5:6. “Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.” [King James Version]
